Campus Fund Over-Subscribed By Students

Entire Indebtedness Will be Cancelled This Month—Subscriptions Now Total $539.27

The Campus drive inaugurated last month has terminated successfully. The issue was finally decided by the students themselves in an exciting rally at the close of chapel last Monday. Sixty-six dollars were still due at that time. When the opportunity was given them to subscribe, after a full explanation of the facts, they "came across" with an over-subscription which will enable the board to largely meet the expenses of the campaign, which are heavy, owing to the high rate of postage and cost of printing.

The entire campaign has been confined to the students, faculty, College, and alumni subscribers to The Campus who are not in the service. A generous response was accorded by a large number of the alumni appealed to, in spite of the very inopportune time of the campaign. A number subscribed a second time when the issue looked doubtful. The most critical period in the history of the paper for a number of years has been successfully weathered, but this could not have been done without alumni assistance.

During the past month many exprssions have been received from alumni indicating a strong desire that the paper be maintained on the present basis. It is believed that the urgency of the situation alone made possible the successful conduct of a campaign of this nature. It is equally certain that it never would have been attempted had it not been found necessary. The issue rested with the students and alumni, and it was realized that discontinuance of publication would not pay the debt. Much credit is due the students who were willing to assume an obligation with which they had no personal connection and for which they were in no way responsible. The recent reorganization of the business department will insure against any repetition of the former financial difficulties.

The following table contains the latest data in connection with the raising of the fund.

Total subscription	$539.27
Alumni	272.25
Students	217.52
Faculty	49.50
Total debt	511.67
Balance subscribed	27.60

The latter sum will be applied to the expenses of the campaign.

NEW PRECEDENT SET BY WOMEN

Women's Basketball With Men's Rules Opened to College March 1

The women's basketball season opened last Friday evening with two good games, one betwen the seniors and freshmen, the other between the juniors and sophomores. The games have been opened to both colleges with an admission charge of ten cents and the teams were loyally supported by their respective classes. Both games were played according to boys' rules. The playing began promptly at 7:15 when the seniors proceeded to fight for their old reputation of no defeat for two years. But the freshmen had little difficulty in approaching the senior basket and the game ended with a score of 10-5 in favor of the underclassmen.

The junior-sophomore game was somewhat livelier from start to finish and proved to be a victory for 1919, the first of the season for the juniors.

New Catalogue Out

The college bulletin for December which is the current catalogue, has just been received at the Registrar's office. It is practically the same as usual, with the addition of an undergraduate roll of honor which includes all members who at present are with the colors, who would have been undergraduates this year.

The summary of students shows 287 but the enrollment for the second semester is 271, not counting the above mentioned honor roll men who numbered thirty-four at the time of publication of the bulletin. Their numbers have been considerably augmented since.

OLD TIME SPIRIT REVIVED AT MIDD

New Songs and Cheers Echo Over Campus—Rallies Every Morning

Coming like a flash of lightning out of a clear sky the spirit and "pep" which was once prevalent at Middlebury College has been revived and from the sound of things it is here to stay. How it started nobody seems able to tell but it is here and growing stronger at the rallies which are held at the close of the chapel services every day. Although unable to give the exact origin of the old fighting spirit, rumor has it that next Saturday night is one of the chief causes, as then Midd's star quintet will battle against the basketball team from the University of Vermont for the championship of the Vermont State League. In less than two weeks three new songs have made their debut on the campus and more are on their way. "Kenny"Gorham of the class of 1918 is the author of these songs and it was thru a suggestion made by him in chapel that rallies have been held regularly every morning after chapel. Instead of "Little 'Liza Jane" and a few of those other popular songs the campus is now ringing with Middlebury's Alma Mator and "Midd Get Vermont".The college on the hill seems like a new place and the entire student body and faculty are tackling their work with lots of "pep" and from the looks of things they can't be stopped.

In addition to the new songs which are published below so that the alumni will be right in the swim when they come back, a new split cheer has been written which will make the boys from Burlington sit up and take notice.

MIDD GET VERMONT

Listen to the distant music ringing
Sounds like Middlebury voices singing,
Colors flashing in each lady's eye
As they go marching by—Just watch them
Side by side with step so firm and steady
In cadence one, two, three;
Hear them shout, shout, shout
As they tramp, tramp, tramp, and
What they say is—
Midd get Vermont! Midd get Vermont!
We want you to win: nothing humbles us
We'll be victorious, and the college chimes
Will ring our praises
To the college that we cherish
Alma Mater true.
Let us fight, fight, fight forever
For our dear old White and Blue.

OUR TEAM

There are teams of blue,
There are green teams too,
There are teams of every size and teams of every hue;
But I surmise that if you are wise
You will watch the team in blue and white
With both your eyes.

Practically Assured of Basketball Laurels in Intercollegiate League

Standing of the Colleges

Middlebury	5	0	1.000
Vermont	4	1	.800
St. Michael's	1	4	.200
Norwich	0	5	.000

Middlebury defeated Norwich's basketball team 53 to 20 Saturday night at Northfield. It was the Blue and White's fifth consecutive victory of the season and made the Vermont Intercollegiate Championship practically a certainty. For the Norwich five it was the fifth straight defeat and unless they defeat St. Michael's next Saturday they will stay in the cellar position.

The game was marked by an injury to Heath, Midd's fast forward, who received a hard knock on the eye in the first few minutes of play which bothered him during the remainder of the game.

It took the Midd quintet almost the entire first half to get accustomed to the armory floor on which the game was played. There were no outside lines nor any other lines for that matter marked out. When they once got familiar with the court the ball was dropped in from all angles. The half ended with Norwich trailing 27 to 11.

During the second half of the game Middlebury played a better passing game and still kept up the rapid fire shooting at the cadets basket. Miske and Parker had their shooting eyes with them and accounted for 45 of Midd's 53 points. Grout and Vitte Played the best game for Norwich. Saturday night is the Big Night. U. V. M. is in second place and a hard fight is anticipated.

The line up.

A Reminder

Our campaign has closed successfully, and in some ways the results have far exceeded our hopes. It has been hard to convince a great many that what we were doing was really worth while, but one thing is certain about the attitude of the student body. It wants to be shown; but when the issue is clear and clearly understood, the students are ready to do their part. The appeal which was made to the student-body at chapel Monday morning amply proves that statement. The Campus is particularly grateful to them for the splendid way in which they rallied to the call and relieved the Board of a most embarrasing situation by generously over-subscribed the fund.

There is another side to the story which wears an altogether different complexion. We have been severely criticised for initiating our campaign at so ill-advised a time in the history of the college. Those who do so fail to take into consideration the facts which were so clearly stated at the beginning. In times of stress like the present, printing establishments have their trials as well as other institutions. Our debt has hung on for four or five years with no progress toward settlement. Our creditors have waited patiently for some action on our part, and it was only with reluctance that they were forced to insist on payment. Of those who would advise us to wait for better times to settle our debts we would ask what their conception of common honesty is. Our conception would lead us to believe that now is preeminently the time to square ourselves with the world in view of the facts as we know them. We did not raise this debt for lack of something better to do—we were forced to the issue. Within the next few weeks a new board will take up the duties of editing and publishing The Campus. Seriously handicapped by diminished numbers, it would have found it practically impossible to have raised the debt within the next year, and the old story would be rehearsed once more. Out of a sense of justice to our debtors and their demands for payment, and with a determination to quit ourselves with the students and alumni whom we represent and to deal squarely with our successors we have undertaken and finished our task. To the alumni and students and members of the faculty who so generously made this possible we are sincerely grateful.

Expansion

"Forward, not backward" is our slogan for the coming critical period of old Midd's history. Four weeks ago President Thomas was in New York attending the meeting of the College trustees as well as raising money for the $300,000 Endowment Fund of the College, and from his report it may be safely assumed that the progress of the College will be an advance and not a retreat in the coming years. As the trustees look at the situation this is not the time for the college to decrease in facilities and numbers but it is the time for her to expand and educate the young men of the country below the draft age for more efficient work for their nation, building up an institution that will be fully equipped and ready to take back the sons who are now in France, on their return from their important work. To this end they have decided to increase the faculty by the addition of an instructor in the department of Economics and Political Science and will assist Professor Abbott in this important branch of study. In fact such is the enthusiasm of certain of the trustees that some expressed a regret that the college year has been shortened, believing that more work than usual ought to be accomplished this year. The report on the fund was also very encouraging, as Prexy announced that he had secured all but the last and hardest third.

Vermont and the War

Vermont is not failing in her usual patriotism in the present world crisis. The response of the old Green Mountain state to her country's call is no less staunch and vigorous than in former years. She is offering her best unstintingly for the cause.

Within six days after the declaration of war Vermont responded with an appropriation of $1,000,000 for public defense. She immediately set about equipping the Vermont regiment, spending over $100,000 in the work.

The ratio of enlistment credits for the first draft gave Vermont first place among the states and in proportion to her population she has more soldiers in France than any other state in the Union. Mother state of eleven admirals, she is true to her old standard for she has already filled the maximum quota allowed to enlist from Vermont in the navy.

Not only has the old state given money, soldiers and sailors to the nation but she has organized a full regiment of home guards all of which are equipped, drilled and ready for response to the next call for service. She is carrying on an extensive work in food production through the department of agriculture. Farm market bureaus and farm employment bureaus have been established and are proving of great assistance in the effort put forth by the people to raise more and larger crops. In this work of increased food production the interest and patriotism of the children have been enlisted. Last season 30,000 boys and girls enrolled in a campaign for food production and conservation conducted by state authorities. The results of this movement were very gratifying for the value of the products raised amounted to $200,000. Besides this concrete evidence of its success there is the added gain in experience which the children have acquired.

The citizens of Vermont have exceeded her quota in every war endeavor, among which were 3 Liberty Loans, the American Red Cross campaign, Y. M. C. A. fund, War Liberty fund and many others. At present they are engaged in campaigns for War Savings Stamps, Smileage Books, Salvation Army and United States Public Service Reserve.

A New Army Creation

In a letter received recently from R. C. Carlson '08 a description is given of a new organization in the United States army, and news of the recent condemnation by the government of Camp Greene, located at Charlotte, North Carolina. This new organization is called the First Army Headquarters Regiment, and its duties are shrouded in mystery, for each man is instructed to give out no information concerning it. The only statement giving any clue whatever is to the effect that every man in the entire regiment speaks French.

Carlson reports that James L. Richmond '08 is in this new regiment with him, but in a different company. Their life is entirely different than that in the National Army, as they are living in tents with very little heat, and bathing facilities are unknown. In spite of the apparent hardship, the spirit of the men is excellent, and they are looking forward to the time when they will get their chance over across.

Letter from French

In France,
Jan. 26, 1918.

Professor M. R. Sanford,
Middlebury, Vt., U. S. A.

Dear Sir:

Yours of November 3rd reached me only a week ago, and today I am rejoicing in the arrival of a Christmas box, for which I am very thankful. I appreciated especially as coming from my Alma Mater. Am afraid I should hardly recognize the old college now.

Was glad to see that so many of the undergraduates are already wearing the khaki, "the only clothes for a man." I am glad that Caldwell is making good. He ought to be "some" officer. Perhaps I shall run across him sometime, though the chance is almost infinitesimal.

Have been soldiering over two years now, and have only gone over the top in one real battle, viz. Vimy Ridge on April 9th; but I have done my share of working parties and am still with my company as a rifle grenadier. I am this week acting as company clerk while that officer is on leave in Blighty. I find life here as hard as any man and probably do as much grousing as any, but I have never regretted coming over. I can do better srvice here than anywhere else I know of.

A short time ago Fritz came over one night on the Scotties who held the front joining ours on the left. Not being welcome there, he soon went home—or most of him did. The next night I was on the tea detail and was carrying a load of hot tea around to the outposts, paddling through the mud and answering each whispered challenge in a whisper. Everything was as still as a listening post. All at once some nut over on the Kiltie front began yelling. No, he hadn't been sniped. He was challenging the Huns, with all the lurid possibilities of a soldier's vocabulary, to "come over again tonight!" The invitation was disregarded.

I would like to write of many things, but as you know the censor is strict. Some of this letter may never reach you. Remember me to any of the Professors who may remain of the 1905 days. I discovered the other day that one of my company officers is a D. U. man from McGill University.

Yours truly,
Pte. J. C. French, 718319,
R. C. R., "C" Coy., B. E. F.,
France.

Change in The First Vermont

Without any warning whatsoever the First Vermont Infantry, located at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, South Carolina, has been changed to the 58th Pioneer Infantry. The State of Vermont has advertised enlistment in the First Vermont but in spite of that fact the men who are enlisting are not permitted to join that organization, although the reason for this is apparently unknown. This is another example of the wholesale chess game which the army is playing with our Vermont troops. The question arises, What next?

Letter from Tousant

My dear Professor Sanford:

I have been receiving letters from you very often but am so busy that I cannot possibly write, only occasionally. Your Christmas box mailed Dec. 5th came to-night. It takes a mighty long time for mail to come. The box was grand. I certainly appreciate your remembering me by sending me The Campus, box, letters, as you have done. I think of all my friends at Midd and hope that next fall I may be back with you all.

We are having regular May weather here. We haven't had any snow for a month and it seems mighty good to get warm weather. No doubt but we'll get cold weather yet. I am very pleased to hear that you are having military training at Midd. There are no Midd men with me. We have a very nice company and the officers are great.

At last we are ready as you doubtless have heard. We've enjoyed our army life in France thus far. We've had everything pertaining to modern warfare. Well my dear Professor Sanford I appreciate what Midd is doing for me and hope that we will all be together next fall. I thank you all for remembering me as you have.

Sincerely
Pvt. L. J. Tousant,
Co. B, 102nd M. G. Btn.,

With Our Presidents

How many of us can name the men who have stood at the head of Middlebury College during her one hundred and eighteen years of existence? Most of us know the names of her last three or four presidents and probably most know the name of her first one; but many do not even know how many there have been, to say nothing about their names.

Middlebury has had nine presidents and it is a list of which she may well be proud. Looking back over the years we feel a thrill of pride and devotion that so able a body of men have been the guides of this institution during her struggles and advances. If in bringing back these seemingly obscure names into the atmosphere of our present college life, they seem lacking in interest, let us remember that each one of these men was in his time "Prexie" to Middlebury students, and just as near to these earlier students as President Thomas is to us.

At the time of the chartering of the college Principal Atwater of the Addison County Grammar School was recommended as president of the new corporation by Dr. Dwight, then president of Yale. Consequently he was appointed as Middlebury's first president in the same year (1800). He served ably until 1809, when he resigned to take the presidency of Dickinson College at Carlisle, Penn. During his administration the work of the college was carried on in the same building with the Grammar School.

President Atwater was succeeded by Henry Davis, who came from the chair of Greek in Union College. He was a man of commanding address and strong personality. As president he was popular. He made the first attempt to raise a fund to improve the finances of the college. Money was pledged and Painter Hall (then called "West College") was erected with the amount. President Davis resigned in 1817 to assume the presidency of Hamilton College.

He was followed by Joshua Bates who was appointed in 1818. During his administration there was a sure movement toward prosperity. There were extensive repairs made on East College and the building known to us as Old Chapel was erected. A connection was formed between Middlebury College and the Castleton Medical Academy. President Bates resigned in 1839.

Next came President Labaree in 1840. His administration was able and energetic throughout. It was during his administration that the semi-centennial celebration was held. The last incident of the administration was the burning of Starr Hall on Christmas eve, 1864. President Labaree resigned in 1866, about the time the college was starting to pull itself together after the war.

Harvey Denison Kitchel was appointed in the same year as Middlebury's fifth president, having been called from Plymouth Church in Chicago. His administration was one of wise judgment and broad efficiency. It was at this time that the Chapel was rearranged and the other buildings repaired. He resigned in 1873.

Calvin Butler Hulbert was appointed in 1875 and served until 1880, being followed by Cyrus Hamlin, who was appointed in 1880. His five years administration was energetic. The library was removed from the Chapel to the north division of Painter Hall, and made more extensive. Young women were admitted to the college in 1883 and a hall built for the Commons. President Hamlin resigned in 1885.

Ezra Brainerd, who was a professor here and had been appointed president pro tempore in 1885, was elected president in the following year. During his administration large endowments were secured. Elective studies were introduced into the curriculum. The centennial celebration was held while he was president. He resigned in 1908.

The last president, John Martin Thomas, was called in 1908 from the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian church, East Orange, N. J. With his administration we are all familiar and it needs no words.

It is interesting to note in this connection where these respective educators received their education. The following paragraph shows the institution that each attended and the date of his graduation. Only three received their first degree from this college, these three being Presidents Kitchel, Brainerd and Thomas.

President Atwater graduated from Yale in 1793; President Davis from Yale in 1796; President Bates from Harvard in 1800; President Labaree from Dartmouth in 1828, and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1831; President Kitchel from Middlebury in 1835, and Yale Theological Seminary in 1838; President Hulbert from Dartmouth in 1853, and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1859; President Hamlin from Bowdoin College in 1834, and Bangor Theological Seminary in 1837; President Brainerd from Middlebury in 1864, and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1868; President Thomas from Middlebury in 1890, and from Union Theological Seminary in 1893.

BATTALION NOTES

Many favorable comments have been heard on the conduct and appearance of the College Battalion, V. V. M. which held its first out-of-door drill last Wednesday afternoon. The weather was somewhat raw but that seemed to liven things up. After a close order drill on Porter Field the Battalion marched down Main street to the High School building and returned by way of College street to the gymnasium. The men enjoyed the short hike and as the weather becomes warmer it is planned to have more of these with military problems introduced.

A new shipment of uniforms has arrived and the men are now completely equipped.

The spirit shown at the drills has been much better lately and the results should do the battalion credit at inspection.

Plans are being laid for holding the delayed military ball.

KRAZY KORNER

The semi-annual business meeting of the Kickers' Klub was held at the Heating Plant last Tuesday at 1:03 a. m. The place of meeting had a strange effect upon the members. It was so suggestive of the future that every member of the Klub resolved to try harder than ever before to keep his Temperance Pledge.

The seconds of the last meeting were sung and accepted.

The Board of Censors reported that it had carefully examined and had passed on ——'s letter, which she so kindly posted for its inspection last week. The Board wishes to urge all inmates of Pearsons Hall to follow ——'s thoughtful example.

Bob Taylor was reported to be seriously ill with the spring fever. Dr. Ross found upon investigation that the Library and class-rooms were infested with these deadly germs. All members of the Klub were ordered to stay away from said places for the rest of the semester, they may, however, visit the movies and the dining hall. This was an awful bit of news to break upon scholarly young men. Some of the members actually broke down and sobbed aloud.

Walbridge lodged a formal complaint in reference to the selections played upon the chimes. A resolution was passed urging the playing of the latest and more classical songs, such as Shakespeare's "Sweet Rosy O'Grady," Milton's "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," and such other modern ballads.

Burckes sang a melodious Hindoo lullaby which was enjoyed by all. Some showed their interest by a peculiar and delicate nasal sound which imitated a sawing-mill to perfection.

Webb, the International Law shark, through bribery and other political methods, secured his appointment as minister plenipotentiary to represent the W. C. T. U. at the Bolshevik government.

The following notice was read: "Those members of the Klub who were planning to Hooverize in clothing by wearing their military uniforms, are hereby informed that said uniforms can be worn only at the movies, when calling at Pearsons and at other riot calls." The next meeting will be held in the cupola of the old chapel building.

ALPHA CHI ALUMNAE MEETING

Twelve members of Alpha Zeta of Alpha Chi met at the home of Mildred D. Lusk in Newark, on February 23, for a jolly re-union. These twelve decided that although they were too far away to get back to Middlebury very often, they would like to keep in closer touch with the college and with the fraternity, and so they have formed the New York Chapter of Alpha Chi Alumnae, which hopes to have its next meeting in the form of a luncheon in New York City within the next two or three months.

Those who enjoyed seeing their old friends and singing the well-remembered songs were: Beatrice Taft '00; Elizabeth Williams, '03; May Peabody, '06; Maude Avery, '10; Marion Martin '11; Abby Harriman, ex-'15; Sarah Funnell, '15; Mildred Lusk, '15; Marjorie Martin, ex-'16; Sue Smith, ex-'17; Ruth Farwell, ex-'20; Johanna Begiebing, ex-'20.

THE BLUE AND WHITE

Once more they trot upon the floor—
The blue and white, the blue and white;
Once more we watch the old five score—

And to the breezes Victory fling—
The blue and white forever.

COLLEGE RALLY HELD IN BOSTON

A Number of Middlebury Alumni Attended

Perhaps the best evidence of the critical situation in which the colleges of America find themselves today was the stirring All-College Rally held on Saturday evening, February 16, at the Boston Opera House. The rally was held for the benefit of the American University Union in Europe, and representatives from colleges all over the country were present. The addresses were on up-to-the-minute topics and great enthusiasm was shown throughout the whole meeting. The presiding officer was Hon. Herbert Parker, while the speakers were men well known all over New England and outside. The first address was delivered by Hon. Calvin Coolidge, Lieutenant-Governor of the State of Massachusetts, who extended "Greetings of the Commonwealth" to those present. "Greetings of the City" was given by Hon. Andrew J. Peters, while Hon. James M. Beck, Esq., of New York, and Mr. John R. Rathom of Providence, who delivered the principal address of the evening, were listened to with great interest by those present.

The music was the best to be had John B. Fielding at the head of his First Corps Cadet Band had charge of the instrumental part of th musical program, while stirring songs were given by the Glee Club of the Radio School at Harvard, assisted by one hundred other singers from the same school. Liberty songs, composed especially for the occasion were also sung by all under the direction of Professor Leo R. Lewis.

The Middlebury representatives at the Rally were J. A. Lobban '98, F. A. Simmons' 02, O. K. Collins '02, C. A. Perkins '07, G. H. Gardner '15, L. E. Bicknell '16, J. E. Rourke ex-"17, and Assistant Dean E. J. Wiley '13. Mr. Simmons '02 was honored with a position on the Finance Committee.

Death of Edward J. Mathews

The town of Middlebury lost one of its oldest residents in the death of Edward J. Mathews, which occurred on February 21, at his farm on Foote street. Mr. Mathews was nearly 91 years old and with the exception of Peter Myers, class of 1847, was the oldest living alumnus of Middlebury College. He was a member of the class of 1850 but did not complete his college course.

On leaving college he settled on the farm where his death occurred. Mr. Mathews was widely known and had been honored with many town offices. For a period of about ten years he served as selectman, being at the head of the board when the big stone bridge which arches the Otter Creek on Main street was built. He was also justice of peace for a number of terms and for the past 30 years was a clerk of the Congregational church. He is survived by his only son, C. J. Mathews.

Sigma Kappa Party

Saturday evening, March 2, the sophomore members of the Sigma Kappa sorority gave a party in their rooms in the Atwell block. Professor and Mrs. Swett and Professor and Mrs. Hathaway chaperoned the party.

SECONDS LOSE TO RUTLAND HIGH

The Middlebury second team was defeated by the strong Rutland High School basketball team at Rutland, March 3, by the score of 27 to 13. The following is taken from the Rutland Herald, "It was a fine game and the spectators witnessed 40 minutes of good live basketball. If one can judge the quality of a varsity from the make-up of its second team, then surely the premier honors of the Vermont Inter-Collegiate league are to rest in Middlebury for at least a year. The passing of the Middlebury team was uncanny in its accuracy and the writer has seen no dribbling on the local court this season that out-classed Middlebury in its deception and elusiveness. To pick a star would be a problem for a jury, but an impartial spectator might say that Jones, their diminutive right guard, showed as good floor-work as any member of either team. On the whole, Middlebury players can well be proud of the reputation left behind them for skill, speed, and sportsmanship."

The Rutland team showed exceptionally fine team-work for a high school, due to the fact that they have played together three years. They were unable however to break through Midd's defensive, and made many of their points by beautiful long shots from the middle of the floor. Hulihan and Hanley were especially efficient in this work.

The shooting of the Middlebury forwards was not up to form due to the very fast bounding-boards. The team was handicapped also by the rules under which the game was played, amateur rules not being followed. Midd had but 4 fouls called and Rutland 6. The game was very fast from start to finish.
